Greenbelt Celebrates Pride With Its First Pride Parade

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

A colorful crowd attends Pride Fest in Roosevelt Center.

On Thursday, June 1, Greenbelt raised the pride flag to mark the commencement of Pride Month. On Saturday, June 3, the city held its second annual Pride Fest, which included, for the first time, a Pride Parade from the playground by the Spellman overpass on Gardenway down to Roosevelt Center.

Maryland State Comptroller Brooke Lierman spoke to the crowd from atop playground equipment prior to the march and thanked participants for standing up for equality for the LGBTQIA community, emphasizing that “every single person in this state is valued and loved and can love whomever they choose to.”

Greenbelt Hears Sonic Boom From F-16s Chasing Plane

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

On Sunday, June 4, many Greenbelt residents heard an unexpected, loud boom through the area that rattled some windows. This caused confusion and a flurry of emergency calls. Some suspected thunder – although the skies were clear – and many others feared it was an explosion.

At 5:22 p.m. the Greenbelt City Police Department shared on social media that the “loud boom that was heard across the DMV area was caused by an authorized

A small private plane had crossed into a Special Flight Rules Area above Maryland shortly before 1:30 p.m. Pilots within the Special Flight Rules Area are required to maintain radio contact, among other things (such as providing a flight plan and transmitting a code). The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) announced that at 1:28 p.m. the pilot failed

Fishing at Greenbelt Lake: Relaxation, Natural Beauty

by Stephanie Quinn

Felix Castillo has fished with all six of his children, but last week at Greenbelt Lake in Buddy Attick Park he was fishing with his youngest three.

In the warm weather months, the shores of Greenbelt Lake are dotted with people fishing to relax, enjoy nature and spend time with friends and family. The first time Castillo, 52, fished at the Lake, he thought it was so beautiful that he told himself someday he would have a house nearby.

“When I came to the United States, I started fishing,” said Castillo. “But I am no good at fishing. I just do it for fun.”

A visitor to the Lake enjoys some solitude while fishing.

He has been fishing for about 25 years and remembers fishing on the pier by the old Woodrow Wilson Memorial Bridge, which was replaced in the early 2000s, and at the Chesapeake Bay Bridge. Now Castillo lives in Greenbelt with his family and brings his kids to the Lake to de-stress after school. From one of the stone platforms along the north side of the Lake, his daughter Veronica pointed out turtles.

“We have to be patient and enjoy and relax because when you come to fish you can see the water, the trees,” he said. “It’s really nice.”

David Daniel, 43, of Laurel, who fished in Greenbelt Lake for the first time during Memorial Day weekend, said he hoped he wouldn’t catch many fish. He doesn’t like taking them off the hook.

Daniel, whose mother lives near the Lake, said that since he and his son, Maxwell Daniel, 12, started fishing last year, they had only used lures, which entice carnivorous fish to bite with their flashy or fish-like appearances. Sunday was the Daniels’ first time using live worms as bait.

They hadn’t caught anything yet, but Daniel wasn’t concerned about it.

Process Was Followed

The City Charter process for selecting a city manager says: “The city manager shall be chosen by the council solely on the basis of his executive and administrative qualifications with special reference to his actual experience.... At the time of his appointment, he need not be a resident of the city or state, but during his tenure of office he shall reside within the city.”

Council passed an amendment to waive the residency requirement. It allows council to find the best candidate even if residency is a challenge. Several citizens petitioned, unsuccessfully, for the charter amendment to go to referendum.

Some people said the city manager should live in Greenbelt. But no other city employees are required to live in Greenbelt. Most cities and towns in Maryland do not have a residency requirement. A good city manager should be engaged regardless of where they live.

Some were concerned that the city would be sued. However, the residency requirement is not an issue until an offer is made. Additionally, the amendment was reviewed by the city solicitor – a respected law firm in Maryland.

Furthermore, the city is part of the local government insurance trust, which provides protection.

Some people were concerned about the process. They believe that all amendments should be voted on by the citizens. However, the Maryland Local Government Article, Sect. 4-304 outlines the process to pass an amendment. Council followed that process.

Someone suggested counting only registered voters who actually voted in the last two elections. While this would violate state law, it would exclude 12,000 Greenbelt residents. Since Prince George’s County took over our voter registration process, the number of eligible voters in Greenbelt has increased. This is good.

Noise Barrier

For years, my husband and I routinely ate with friends at the New Deal Café. Then they got a new sound system which they insisted on playing at a volume that was uncomfortably loud.

We would ask them to turn the volume down with no improvement in the volume level.

We decided to not go back again.

A Fond Farewell

To the good people of Greenbelt, you may not have realized it, but for the last 15 years, a person of questionable character has been living among you. A novelist. If you’ve ever seen a blonde trans woman wandering aimlessly through the neighborhood with a dreamy look in her eye, that would be me, thinking

Spider-Man: Across the Spider-Verse

Miles Morales returns for the next chapter of the Oscar-winning Spider-Verse saga, an epic adventure that will transport Brooklyn’s full-time, friendly neighborhood Spider-Man across the Multiverse to join forces with Gwen Stacy and a new team of Spider-People to face off with a villain more powerful than anything they have ever encountered. Also starring Hailee Steinfeld, Oscar Isaac, Jake Johnson, Issa Rae and Daniel Kaluuya.

The Eight Mountains

Italian with English subtitles

After meeting as children over a series of summers in the Italian Alps, Pietro (Luca Marinelli) and Bruno (Alessandro Borghi) reunite as adults to build a mountainside cottage which becomes a site of both reflection and reconciliation. Said critic Wendy Ide of the UK’s Observer: “Combines the earthy, rooted grit of Jack London with the vivid emotional landscapes of Elena Ferrante.”

You Hurt My Feelings

Beth (Julia Louis-Dreyfus), a popular writer, and her husband Don (Tobias Menzies), a well-liked teacher, share the kind of relationship that truly, seriously cannot be real: that is, they’re actually in love. Even after decades of marriage, parenting and their own successful careers, their physical spark has somehow not diminished; in fact, they seem to relish the opportunity to share a single ice cream cone and drive others – including their son, Charlie – mad. Should it come as a surprise then that his own marriage is in crisis? But when Beth discovers that Don has been untruthful to her about his opinion of her work for years, her world comes crashing down. Has their whole relationship been one Big Fat Lie?

Beauty and the Beast

An arrogant young prince (Robby Benson) and his castle’s servants fall under the spell of a wicked enchantress, who turns him into the hideous Beast until he learns to love and be loved in return. The spirited, headstrong village girl Belle (Paige O’Hara) enters the Beast’s castle after he imprisons her father Maurice (Rex Everhart). With the help of his enchanted servants, including the matronly Mrs. Potts (Angela Lansbury), Belle begins to draw the cold-hearted Beast out of his isolation.

10 Things I Hate About You

Kat Stratford (Julia Stiles) is beautiful, smart and quite abrasive to most of her fellow teens, meaning that she doesn’t attract many boys. Unfortunately for her younger sister, Bianca (Larisa Oleynik), house rules say that she can’t date until Kat has a boyfriend, so strings are pulled to set the dour damsel up for a romance. Soon Kat crosses paths with handsome new arrival Patrick Verona (Heath Ledger). Will Kat let her guard down enough to fall for the effort-lessly charming Patrick?

Growing Good Soil Workshop by CHEARS

CHEARS will offer a Good Soil Workshop on Saturday, June 17 from 2 to 3:30 p.m. at the Community Center’s CHEARS Three Sisters Garden by the flag pole (if raining this event will be held inside the Community Center, Room 103). Bring experiences and questions to share. A RSVP is required. Send email to rob-bins629@gmail.com for questions and to sign up for this workshop. This event is limited to the first 20 participants and is free.

The foundation of any great garden is its soil. Part of a gardener’s role is to “grow” good soil, to assist nature in the process that it does so well. This is needed because much of the soil where we may be trying to grow a garden may have been depleted or compromised in some way. When you focus on “growing” soil rather than growing plants, you are assisting our local ecosystem and the plants you grow will also benefit. This workshop will focus on: types of soil, the soil food web, composting, sheet mulching, the use of cover crops, the use of amendments and vermiculture. Beginning and more experienced gardeners are welcome.

The presenter, Judy Walsh-Mellet, grew up gardening with her dad and sisters in upstate New York. She has tended a garden in Mount Rainier for over 35 years. Her training includes: Master Gardener (1994), Volunteer U.S. National Arboretum (1997), Sustainable Mini-Farming Course with Ecology Action (2000), Permaculture Design Course (2013), Intern at ECO City Farms (2013). She currently hosts Still Place: An Urban Retreat in her home and garden (stillplacemd.com).

Robert Franklin Haas

On May 20, 2023, Robert Franklin Haas died at age 100. A longtime Beltsville resident, Bob was born in Pennsylvania and served as a chief warrant officer in the U.S. Army during World War II. Through the GI Bill, he attended the University of Maryland, where he received an accounting degree. He spent most of his career in fleet management working for a private firm and then for the U.S. Postal Service. He was a member and treasurer of the Washington, D.C., Chapter of the Society of Automotive Engineers, a member and chapter president of NARFE (National Active and Retired Federal Employees) and a member of the VFW and American Legion Greenbelt Post 136.

Bob was active in his church, serving as an elder and treasurer. He is remembered for his many years of service to the community visiting patients at the Laurel Children’s Home, delivering Meals on Wheels and serving on their board and taking doughnuts to the Old Soldiers Home when he was in his 90s.

An avid antique car buff, Bob also enjoyed traveling, reading history and gardening – his Meals on Wheels clients often received tomatoes from his garden in their delivery.

Bob is survived by his children, Karen Mayer, Janet Glanville, Robert Haas and Carl Haas; and by his 12 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren. Bob was predeceased by his wife of 58 years, Nellie Haas, and his great-granddaughter, Kaitlyn Bourgeault.

A visitation and memorial celebration of Bob’s life will be held at Borgwardt Funeral Home (borgwardtfuneralhome.com) in Beltsville on Wednesday, June 14. Doors open at 1 p.m. for visitation with a memorial celebration service at 2 p.m. In lieu of flowers, the family asks that a donation be made to Meals on Wheels of College Park, PO Box 797, College Park, MD 20740 or online at mealsonwheelsofcollegepark.org/donate.

to respond to air traffic control instructions. The FAA reported the situation to the Domestic Events Network, which includes the military, national security, homeland security and other law enforcement agencies shortly after 1:30 p.m.

The small plane continued out of the Special Flight Rules Area toward Long Island where it then turned and headed back toward Washington. This time the plane crossed into a restricted zone that includes the White House and National Mall, violating a No-Fly Zone that was created after September 11, 2001.

At 2:35 p.m. two F-16 fighter jets were deployed from Joint Base Andrews and four were launched from bases in neighboring states to intercept the plane. The White House National Security Council Spokesperson John Kirby said at a press conference that the two jets from Andrews were the first to reach the plane. Flying faster than the speed of sound they had created the sonic boom that was heard in Greenbelt.

Though the private plane crossed restricted airspace, it was not considered an immediate threat to the capital because of its 31,000-foot altitude.

Investigation is ongoing but it is believed the small plane's passengers, including the pilot, had lost consciousness due to lack of pressure and that the plane was travelling on autopilot. Tragically, it crashed in Virginia, likely because it had depleted its supply of fuel. There were no survivors from the plane, which had been carrying four people.

FISHING continued from page 1

"We did all right at Centennial [Lake] in Columbia, but this time we just came to go fishing with Mom," Daniel said.

Dermacus Cousins III, 14, of Takoma Park, caught his first fish in Greenbelt Lake on Memorial Day. "It was cool when he got on the line and I had to pull him in," said Cousins.

Matteo Palmer, 13, also of Takoma Park, invited Cousins to come fishing. Palmer said he has fished his whole life with family, like in Minnesota with his dad, but not in Greenbelt Lake until a couple of weeks ago. "It's pretty," Palmer said. "It has fish," he noted, including bass, trout and crappie.

Zhenhua Zou, 34, of Greenbelt, only fishes in Greenbelt Lake because he's had more luck catching fish there than elsewhere. Usually, he throws the crappies he catches back in. Last Tuesday evening he pulled a small fish, silver and glimmering, from the water, unhooked it and tossed it back in, too.

"If they're huge, I can keep them, but normally they're not huge," Zou said.

The size of the catch aside, Zou listed reasons to keep coming back to Greenbelt Lake. "For fun," he said. "And it's pretty beautiful here, the scenery."

My Point of View

A Perspective on Juneteenth

by Lois Rosado

June 19, 1865, is the date that enslaved people of Galveston, Texas, were informed about their emancipation. For them, it was a day of great jubilation and celebration. It is also a day that many Black Americans now consider their Independence Day and are often conflicted about July 4th. Frederick Douglass clarified the dilemma in his 1852, July 4th speech.

“What, to the American slave, is your 4th of July? I answer: a day that reveals to him, more than all other days in the year, the gross injustice and cruelty to which he is the constant victim. To him, your celebration is a sham; your boasted liberty, an unholy license; your national greatness, swelling vanity; your sounds of rejoicing are empty and heartless; your denunciations of tyrants, brass fronted impudence; your shouts of liberty and equality, hollow mockery; your prayers and hymns, your sermons and thanksgivings, with all your religious parade, and solemnity, are, to him, mere bombast, fraud, deception, impiety, and hypocrisy – a thin veil to cover up crimes which would disgrace a nation of savages. There is not a nation on the earth guilty of practices, more shocking and bloodier, than are the people of these United States, at this very hour.”

At that time the United States was at the height of its brutal racial slave/caste system. However, it is also important to point out that the first man to die for the independence of the United States during the Boston Massacre of 1770 was Crispus Attucks, a man of African and Indigenous origins and an escaped slave. It is ironic that many would not have seen Attucks as fully human, much less a citizen, at that time. In fact, George Washington asked free Black men to join the fight for American independence because more troops were needed. They did join. Citizenship rights were promised, but seldom granted. Even enslaved men were conscripted to fight by their masters’ promise of emancipation but many of those who survived were returned to enslavement.

There are Black descendants of revolutionary war veterans like Professor Henry Louis Gates, who are members of the Sons or Daughters of the American Revolution.

Should Black Americans celebrate the 13th amendment ending slavery in 1865, the 14th amendment granting citizenship in 1868 or the 15th amendment granting voting rights in 1870?

What is important for historical purposes is that Black American men and women have fought mightily in every war for the United States, mostly in segregated units until after World War II. They fought with great tenacity and fortitude during the Civil War in order to free themselves and their people in bondage.

It is imperative that we honor those who fought to end slavery and enabled Juneteenth to become a holiday to be nationally celebrated, and it is equally important to honor Black American troops who gave their lives for the ideal of democracy, even while being lynched, segregated and treated as second-class citizens. Even as Black people continue to be lynched to this day, the father of Nicole Hannah-Jones, author of the 1619 project, flew the American flag at his home. It is also why many Black Americans will celebrate Juneteenth and July 4th. They have paid a high price to celebrate both holidays.

Lois Rosado has lived in Greenbelt more than 24 years. During that time she has been instrumental in creating Black History and Juneteenth programming for the community.

He will show artifacts, share family history and discuss the significance of the date for many African American families. The lecture will be held in the Community Center Multipurpose Room. up the idea for my next book.

I arrived in Greenbelt somewhat accidentally in 2007, with two small children in tow. It was a lucky break for us because living in Greenbelt has been a rare and precious gift, full of kindness, warmth and acceptance. Now my “babies” are heading off to college, and I have decided to spend my empty nest years in New York, where the majority of my family resides.

But do not think that I leave you empty-handed! For the last year, I have been working on a children’s novel that is set in Greenbelt. I have changed the names and some geography to suit the narrative, but much of it will be familiar to you. When my editor at Scholastic read the manuscript, he could scarcely believe such an “idyllic” place existed. I assured him that it did. It is called No Filter, and it will be out in February. You can learn more about it at kelleyskovron.com.

Some of you I know well. Some I’ve spoken to. Some I’ve merely nodded and smiled to in passing. All of you are marvelous. This place and its people will always occupy a special place in my heart. Thank you all so much.

formerly of 2 Research Road*

One-Sided Petition Views

Last week, the Greenbelt News Review published three separate letters to the editor, all disagreeing with Peggy Higgins’s opinions regarding her petition efforts to send the city manager residency requirement to a referendum. It’s disappointing that the city’s preeminent newspaper would print such a one-sided collection of responses to Higgins’s laudable efforts.

Furthermore, each letter includes factual errors. For example, Higgins’s experience is indeed anecdotal, but anecdotes are not distinct from data; typically, data include multiple data points, each of which would, on its own, be an anecdote. In another example, the alleged problems in California do not arise from referenda but from initiatives, which are categorically different. Referenda allow citizens to have a say on important policies approved by a legislature; initiatives allow citizens to write their own laws.

Most importantly, all three letters completely missed the point. This petition drive was not about overturning an arbitrary council decision or about the merits of the city manager residency requirement itself. This petition drive was about whether our charter, our foundational document as a city that is supposed to be supreme to the city council, should be amended by a single-vote, bare majority of the city council. I think it’s clear that the answer is no. Almost no legislature in the world has such extreme power to alter its own foundational document, and I see no reason why Greenbelt should be different.

A Note of Gratitude

On behalf of the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Ladies Auxiliary, it is with great gratitude that we thank you Greenbelters for always supporting and participating in our yard and bake sales, our crab feasts and all other activities and events we have throughout the year. We could not do it without you; our family, friends, neighbors and organizations.

A new addition to our exciting calendar of events, will be a vendor and craft show on Saturday, July 22. We can’t wait to share that day with all of you.

I am so proud to live in a city that I love and support. Thanking you once again – you are the best.

Mosquito Tip: Fix The Drainage Pipe

Does this picture look familiar? There might be a mosquito breeding site right in the yard. Drainage pipes like these can be found everywhere in Greenbelt. They are preferred breeding sites for mosquitoes since their grooves do not dry out. Make sure mosquitoes cannot breed in any drainage pipe. A quick and easy fix: Put mosquito netting or a hosiery stocking over the end of the drainage pipe, and cover any other holes in the pipe. Check regularly for debris build-up and whether the covering needs to be replaced. If possible, seek expert advice on how to replace the corrugated pipe with non-corrugated pipe and bury it properly in the ground. Preventing breeding sites prevents pesticides. ## Fleeing Carjack Driver Strikes Local Police Cars

On Tuesday, May 30, at approximately 8:11 a.m., Greenbelt police officers responded to 141 Westway for a carjacking. The victim reported that a man pushed her to the ground, took her keys and stole her light gray Toyota RAV4 (MD plate: 7CA7099).

The following afternoon at approximately 2:56 p.m., a community member noticed that the vehicle that had been reported stolen was parked by the Greenbelt Library and reported it to the police. As officers entered the area, the driver of the suspect vehicle intentionally struck two police cruisers in an attempt to flee. No officers were injured.

The public was asked to avoid the area on Crescent near the library while there was a large police presence.

A short vehicle pursuit followed until it was discontinued in the interest of public safety. The car was last seen on the outer loop of I-495 westbound entering Montgomery County.

A Greenbelt police spokesperson said the incident is an example of Greenbelt’s Community Police partnership, in which the community member who reported the car had memorized the license plate from a previous social media post about the carjacking.

“If you see something, say something,” urges the Police Department.

As a cooperative, GHI blends characteristics of self-government and private enterprise.

Ralph moved from a private company to managing a community that residents collectively own. Before joining GHI's staff in 1997, Ralph worked for the maintenance management firm ServiceMaster as director of physical plant operations on the company's account with D.C. public schools. Born in Guyana, he emigrated to the U.S. from Britain in 1988.

For Ralph, succeeding in his work has been rooted in service and attentiveness to the needs of staff and GHI members alike. "You've got to serve the customers really well," he said. "And that's not only the external customers, but your internal customers as well." Ralph said that staff, as internal customers, are key to meeting the needs of members as external customers. "You have got to get the best out of your employees in order to serve the external customers really, really well."

Ralph advocated for staff, said Joseph Perry, Jr., GHI's director of finance. "If there were any concerns by staff, he would raise them to the board so they were fully aware," Perry said. "Transparency is an excellent word to describe Eldon."

Ralph said he has led by empathy in his interactions with members and the board of directors. "You've always got to realize, 'Okay, let me put myself in their shoes to see whether it is they have a point,'" Ralph said. "In 90 percent of the time since I've been here, I think they have a point. They've got a good point, and you have to hear them."

GHI President Stefan Brodd counted Ralph's leadership of GHI through the Covid-19 pandemic and multiple staff transitions among his greatest achievements. Brodd and Perry commented on Ralph's commitment to GHI's strategic planning process. Every summer, the board of directors and interested members meet with the guidance of an external facilitator to set a 12-month action plan and longer-term goals.

"That strategic plan, which is a very detailed document," Brodd said, "really turns into a set of assignments that the board is asking our staff to complete within those given timeframes."

GHI's cooperative ethos has opened opportunities for GHI to contribute to national energy-efficient building efforts and, alongside the City of Greenbelt, preserve the New Deal characteristics of Old Greenbelt.

GHI's Homes Improvement Program upgraded GHI homes' energy efficiency by replacing windows, entry doors and baseboard heaters in almost all of the 1,600 units between 2016 and 2021. Prior to the rollout, with support from the U.S. Department of Energy, GHI partnered with the National Association of Home Builders Research Center on a multi-year pilot program assessing the performance of proposed improvements in 28 of the cooperative's brick, frame and cinderblock homes.

After years of negotiations between the city, GHI and the Prince George's County Council, a Neighborhood Conservation Overlay Zone limiting residential density will take effect in April.

What's Next?

Ralph said that he will help ensure a "smooth and seamless transition" to his successor.

What will he do then? "For the first three months?" Ralph said, "Sleep." Then, he plans to invest time in hobbies, spend time with his grandchildren and work with volunteer organizations.

Ralph emphasized that GHI's achievements resulted from teamwork. "The great sports organizations, they're sound all the way through, and I think it's the same with GHI," Ralph said. "What I mean is this: my success that I've had here, if things have happened during the time that I've been here, they cannot solely be attributed to me. The board takes credit and so do all the employees who I have worked with."

Perry said Ralph is "extremely, extremely dedicated to doing his absolute best." Brodd described Ralph's "flawless integrity."

"He's an extraordinary person," Brodd said. "We're really going to miss him."

played as the crowd marched to the city center. The Parade was led by Grand Marshals Kellen Cole, 10, and Delegate Ashanti Martinez, who attended their first pride fest last year. Martinez was appointed to the Maryland House of Delegates in February and is the first openly gay person to represent Prince George’s County in the Maryland General Assembly. Greenbelt Mayor Emmett Jordan and Councilmembers Kristen Weaver and Silke Pope also marched in the Parade.

Organizer and Councilmember Ric Gordon marched beside the glamorous drag queen, CoCo. Gordon estimated there were over 200 participants at this year’s events, doubling the number from last year.

U.S. Representative Glenn Ivey, speaking to the crowd at Roosevelt Center, introduced some seriousness amidst the celebratory atmosphere, noting that though Greenbelt’s pride celebration had grown, “we’ve got a lot of bad activity going on too, especially in Florida,” referencing bans on instruction about sexual orientation and identity in schools, colloquially called a “Don’t Say Gay” law, as well as the DeSantis administration’s laws put forward to ban gender-affirming treatments, regulate bathroom usage and curtail drag shows.

“Unlike some of our counterparts in other states we are going to say here in Maryland we do respect trans kids,” said Delegate Nicole Williams during her comments.

Taylor Cantwell Cole, mother of the young co-marshal Kellen, and clinical director of the Choice Clinical Services, a sponsor of Pride Fest, said she was incredibly proud of her children, who participated in the events, and said of Greenbelt, “To get to grow up in a city where you are seen, loved, acknowledged and honored for being you is exactly why we live here.”

Pride Month is celebrated annually in June to commemorate the Stonewall Uprising, which began on June 28, 1969, with the police raid on The Stonewall Inn, a popular bar for the trans and gay community, to perform gender checks and confirm cross-dressing. The patrons resisted and several days of protests began. One year later, people from the LGBT community gathered to commemorate the uprising and parades that took place in New York, Los Angeles and Chicago. The following year more cities held parades and today June brings pride parades in cities across the U.S. and the world.
